QUESTION: Can PIBCI Members belong to another Political Party?

PIBCI Members have the right to belong to other political parties. If you joined another registered political party before you joined PIBCI, the Australian Electoral Commission will not allow your name to be used to register PIBCI. Your name can only be used for PIBCI registration purposes if:

1. You are on the electoral roll
2. You belong to no other registered political party

If you want your membership to be used to register PIBCI you need to be on the electoral roll and you need to resign from any other registered political party.

PIBCI accepts membership from people who are not on the electoral roll.

PIBCI is a political party that stands candidates in elections and also uses non-violent direct action (protests, vigils, strikes, petitions, boycotts etc) to put public interests before corporate interests.
